desperately ill with lagrippe, and at this writing very little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Flake Howard, the second son of the deceased, yesterday sustained a severe injury by cutting an ugly gash in his foot with an axe.

—At a called meeting of the board of aldermen on last Thursday night the services of Engineer Adlai Osborne, of Charlotte, were secured for the purpose of making a survey of the streets, get a level and same, the estimate of the cost of placing a sewer line and extending the water mains, and also for grading the streets. This work will be begun by Mr. Osborne just as soon as he can complete arrangements, probably the last of this week. He will make a profile and submit it to the board, which body will probably then submit the question of bonds for the improvements, said bonds not to exceed $35,000. That amount is said to be sufficient to cover the cost of the improvements desired.

—Mr. W. D. Templeton is out with a petition, asking for the appointment as postmaster at Mooresville to succeed the present incumbent, A. C. Kerley, whose time expires in March 1914. It is said that there are other aspirants for this particular plum, but they have not yet come to the front. Mr. Templeton is one of the most active Democrats in Iredell county, and if the office is given to one for "party service," then the others may as well take a back seat. Mr. Templeton has some strong backing.

—R. H. Tomlinson, for thirty-five years or longer a resident of Mooresville, died at his home on Moore avenue last night at 12:30 o'clock of pneumonia. He had been sick or in bad health for several years past, several weeks ago contracting a very bad cold. Last Saturday pneumonia developed, but his constitution was too far gone to withstand the ravages of that disease. Deceased came to Mooresville from North Iredell, having been born in March 1833, and was the first tinner the town ever had. He followed his trade for a number of years, but later became a merchant and then a general hardware dealer. About ten years ago he retired from business on account of his impaired health, devoting his time to farming.

—Mrs. Kate Rogers, who has been with the Howard, Brawley & Co., store for several years will have charge of the millinery department this year, having succeeded Miss Fannie Walters, resigned. Miss Tula Moose has succeeded Mrs. Rogers in the dress goods department. Mrs. Rogers left Monday for the north.

—Mr. Frank Gentry and Miss Lu Telle Bostian were happily married Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. J. W. Jones officiating, the ceremony taking place at the home of the minister. Miss Bostian is the daughter of Mr. D. U. Bostian and the groom is an employee of the Mooresville Furniture Company, having moved here sometime ago from Willeshoro. Mr. Mack Melchor and Miss Callie Sherrill stood with the bride and groom during the saying of the vows.

—Mrs. M. W. White and daughter, Miss Mary Bethel White, left last Friday, to join Mr. White at the home for the Aged Masons and members of the Eastern Star, at Pomona, near Greensboro. Mr. Moses White, Jr., left Monday, going across country. Mr. White had been there for several weeks arranging the home and preparing a place for his family.

—Mrs. John V. Barger returned Monday from a visit of several weeks with relatives at Morven.

—Mrs. Belle Wilson, of Wichita, Kansas, will arrive Friday and spend several weeks here with Mrs. A. E. Brown.

—Monday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock the Winston freight train which plys between the Twin City and the Queen City, met with disaster at a point less than a half mile below Mount Mourne, when ten cars jumped the track, causing a considerable smash-up. Some of the cars were ladened with coal, some with lumber and another with compressed cotton. There is no telling of what causes the wreck, but it is apparent from a casual observation that the trucks to some car broke loose, which wrought the trouble. Engineer Wray was at the throttle, and it was known to him as well as other engineers that the track between mile posts 25 and 26 was weak, and of course he had taken every precaution to prevent such disaster. O. C. Harris, the conductor, was in charge.

The cars were so jammed that they made a considerable heap in the fields and road nearby, to say nothing of tearing up and blocking probably 100 feet of rail. The trains from Charlotte and Statesville met at that point Monday evening, transferring crews, passengers and baggage, causing very little delay to travel. The night was pleasant and the wreck occurred at a point where neither cut or fill made the work of exchange very trying. A wrecking crew took charge about 8:30 Monday night, and the trains were able to pass through on practically schedule time Tuesday morning. No lives were lost and the damage will soon be forgotten.

—Mr. Lon Coon and bride arrived Saturday night from their honeymoon trip to Jacksonville and St. Augustine. Mr. Coon has resumed his run between Charlotte and Winston, but Mrs. Coon will spend a portion of her time here until more definite plans are made for their permanent home.

—Mr. Clyde Deal has returned to town, after working a short while in the handle factory at Hillsboro.

—Miss Eunice Sloop has returned from Charlotte where she spent several days with Miss Sarah Bost.

satisfactory, so at the age of 74 Mr. Angell decided to manage his own farm, seeding it to small grain and soybeans and other crops of that nature that require the least amount of hired labor to help him handle it. Today you will find on the farm 30 acres of Roanoke Soybeans that were seeded approximately April 26, this year with 200 pounds 2-12-12 fertilizer per acre. They were seeded in rows and have been cultivated twice. The growth at the present strike to the average man breast high This, he thinks, is a good example of how soybeans can be grown in Iredell county with just as good a stand as in Eastern Carolina.

These soybeans when harvested will be available for other farmers who are interested in growing a good variety soybeans for hay, oil and feed. Mr. Angel has agreed to let as many of his neighbors and friends have what ever amount of seed that they might need for their own farm from this field of soybeans.

According to Mr. Angell's own statement, "A small farm on which good management and proper soil building practices are used can be one of the most profitable farms."

Today Mr. and Mrs. Angell are living in Harmony, enjoying life and health and have the satisfaction of knowing that they have raised educated children which is not only that they are now making their mark in the world through the fine jobs they have prepared themselves for.

Artificial Breeding Of Ayrshire Cattle Becomes Reality

Artificial breeding of Ayrshire cattle has become a reality in Iredell county, it was announced today by Assistant Farm Agent Ralph Shepherd

At a recent meeting of the directors of the North Carolina Ayrshire Breeders Association and the artificial breeding committee, plans for such a program were formulated. The committee on artificial breeding made a survey of Ayrshire studs throughout the central west and east to select the best source of semen at a cost in line with the Southeastern Stud at Asheville.

A contract has been made with the Central Ohio Breeding Association for Ayrshire semen. This semen will be processed by the Southeastern Stud at Asheville and will be shipped to the counties with the semen of other breeds and will be available to breeders at the same price as other breeds, Mr. Shepherd said.

The cost of air expressing the semen to the stud in Asheville will be paid by the North Carolina Breeders Association and the Asheville stud will process it at no charge

The semen will be available beginning October 1.

FOOD SOURCES

Dried beans and peas and soybeans are good sources of protein, iron, thiamin, and riboflavin.

Community Chaff

BRAVO—Our hat is off to the people of Chapel Hill and Orange county. They are getting ready to celebrate their 200th birthday over there this fall, and the males have decided not to grow beards. This is in keeping with historical truth, because men did not wear beards other 100 years ago or 200 years ago. In another ten years the bearded boys at such celebrations will be more in keeping with history, because it was not until around 1880 that beards became the vogue in America. Abe Lincoln; you will recall from portraits, was clean-shaven when he became President.

NAUSEA—The so-called "International Set" threw themselves a party the other week at Biarritz. Some jerk by the name of the Marquis de Cuevas spent $100,000 in an evening throwing this party. There was a lake filled with perfume, 3,000 bottles of champagne, just to mention two items. Along about daylight, the guests squirted champagne at each other, threw food into the perfumed lake, and some of them undressed and went swimming in the lake. Poor, lonely, jaded people, ghosts in a world of the hydrogen bomb, shortening shadows of a past that strangely lingers on. Around the world millions of men and women read of this extravaganza and, tightening their belts over their lean bellies, renewed their unrest and muttered their curses.

NIGHTGOWNS—The Electro-Chemical Products Corporation of East Orange, N. J., has come out with something that will do away with the static a lady will get when she wears a rayon nightgown and slides between the new nylon sheets to be put on the market next month by the Pepperell Manufacturing Company of Boston. Here is where Elliott Springs, the textile wag from Lancaster, S. C., entered the picture. He is the largest manufacturer of cotton sheets in the world, he says. Commenting on the new nylon sheet, he says:

"We have found that if a lady wears a rayon nightgown and slips into bed between nylon sheets she will light up like the aurora borealis from the static."

He added that so much had been written about man-made fibers revolutionizing the textile market that the buying public, including himself, was ready to try cloth made of corn cobs, pecan shells and lame duck feathers.

"I have thrown away at least a hundre shirts that are made of blends of Nylon, Dacron, Orlon, Rayon, Dynel, Chromspun, Acrilan, Saran, Vicara, Vicuna, Vigoro and Krilium," continued Mr. Springs. "This morning I see where another manufacturer is announcing a new one made of coal, sawdust and peach fuzz, and I am sure he will sell a lot of them before the public wearies of the novelty and makes me run overtime to supply enough plain cotton broadcloth."

He said he also makes fancy cloth. His mills turn out chlorophyll sheets, perfumed sheets, non-skid sheets, and anti-static sheets. "I have no doubt we soon will be selling a sheet made from a blend of buttermilk, linseed oil and juniper juice," he concluded. "Until that time we can prove that is the combed percale sheet is the best buy in the world."

HITLER AGAIN—Last night we finished one of the most amazing books we have ever read. It is a book published by Trevor-Roper containing 587 pages of Hitler's secret conversations. In his introduction, Trevor-Roper says, in effect, that Hitler was the most systematic, the most historical, the most philosophical" tyrant who ever lived. He seems to forget that Alexander the Great studied under Aristotle, that Caesar was a brilliant historian in his own right, and that Napoleon had an astonishing brain and a wide grasp of history and philosophy.

But Hitler does, in these stenographic records, reveal occasional flashes of brilliance. However, in most things he was stupid. For instance, in 1942 he predicted that Churchill had a secret refuge ready in America and that he would flee England. It is truly a fascinating and amazing book that leaves you reading on and on into the night.

BLUNDER—Wherever political leaders go into a huddle in North Carolina, whether it be in the east, the Piedmont or the west, the conviction seems to grow among them that Governor Umstead pulled the blunder of his career in his appointment of Lenton to the U. S. Senate.

LAST POSE OF SUMMER

With fall all set to make its official debut next Wednesday, Mary Jo Lytle bids farewell to summer with a smile, though she isn't too happy about it. From sand, surf and sun, it's back to science, civics and spelling for millions of teen-agers like Mary Jo, a 17-year-old senior at Mooresville High School. As a final tribute to old Sol and Neptune, she is shown here posing on the grassy bank of a nearby pool —soaking up those few remaining rays of summer's sun-tanning sun. Four inches taller than the five-foot-two girl of song, Mary Jo has blue eyes, light brown hair, and weighs 120 pounds. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lytle of 450 Lutz street.

WHEN EX-POW COMES HOME

Town To Welcome Moore

SFC Ronald L. Moore, recently released from a Chinese Communist prisoner-of-war camp after more than two years internment, will get a royal welcome when he returns to Mooresville.

At press time it hadn't been learned when the Sergeant would arrive home. In a telegram sent his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Moore, over the week end, he said he would reach San Francisco, Calif., Wednesday, September 16. From there he will be transported to either Camp Stoneman or Ft. Mason, both in California. From then on he will be on his own, and free to choose when and how he shall arrive home, whether by plane or train.

It is speculated here that he likely may take a plane to Charlotte. If this is the case, he will be met by a welcoming motorcade from Mooresville, headed by State Patrolmen, and returned to town where a parade will await his coming. At any event, a parade will be held upon his arrival. Already a "Welcome Home Ronald Moore" sign has been hung across Main Street.

The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the welcome for Sgt. Moore, with the assistance of other local civic groups. Herman Compton and Holmes Foster have been appointed a committee to handle the welcome party. Charles Farmer and Marvin Sigmon will handle the parade details.

It is hoped that Sgt. Moore's arrival will be on a Tuesday afternoon. The welcome party will consist of Mayor Boyce A. Brawley, members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, and color guards from the two organizations, and the presidents of the various other civic organizations.

The parade will halt on Main Street, midway between Center and Moore avenues, at which time Mayor Brawley will deliver the speech of welcome.

Merchants will observe the occasion by hanging out flags at their places of business.

DURING AUGUST

Iredell County Adds 16 Miles Of Paving

Raleigh, Sept. 15 — The State Highway Commission completed 16.2 miles of paving in Iredell county during the month of August, Commissioner June F. Scarborough of Statesville, reported today.

The following roads, and their lengths, were newly-hardsurfaced:

Celeste Henkel School Road, southwest to crossroads, 2.3 miles; from Route 901 to Davie county line, 3.4 miles; from Route 21 parallel to county line to hard-surfaced road, 2.6 miles; county road Route 90 to Route 70, west of Statesville, one mile; Route 21, southeast to Yadkin River, 2.5 miles, connecting road Route 21 to Route 150, 2.7 miles; and Mill Village Road south of Mooresville, 1.7 miles. All these roads, with the exception of the Mill Village Road, were financed by the $200,000,000 secondary road bond program.

The Twelfth Highway Division composed of Alexander, Catawba, Cleveland, Gaston, Iredell, and Lincoln counties brought a total of 29 miles of road work to completion during August, Commissioner Scarborough said.

Civic League Group Sponsors Clothing Closet

The Welfare committee of the Junior Civic League is again sponsoring a children's clothing closet. There are many cases of children in Mooresville who are in need of warm clothes and shoes. Mrs. T. C. Doby, chairman of the closet committee, is receiving the clothing at her home. Anyone who has clothes their children have out grown may leave them with Mrs. Doby. The clothes should be mended and clean. The committee would also appreciate any information concerning other children in need.

Iredell School Board Buys Land

The Iredell County Board of Education, in monthly session at Statesville last week, took action to secure additional land at several county school sites.

The board approved the purchase of four additional acres at Union Grove, two acres at Shepherd, one half acre at Cool Spring, four acres at Mount Mourne, and almost five acres at Unity.

The land at Union Grove will be used for playground facilities and a sewage disposal system. At Shepherd, the land was needed to meet minimum requirements for accreditation of the school. At Mount Mourne's land will be used for sewage disposal and future development. At Unity and Cool Spring, it was found the location of the buildings also on private property. Additional land is also needed for sewage disposal at Unity.

City Board Approves New White Way Lighting Plan

TB Association Won't Participate In United Fund

The Iredell County Tuberculosis Association has advised both the local United Community Fund Committee and the Iredell-Statesville United Fund, Inc., that it will not participate in any united fund drive this year.

Charles W. Washington, president of the Iredell County TB Association, recently orally informed Emmett Morrow, chairman of the United Community Fund Committee, that the Association could not participate. His answer was made in response to a request from Mr. Morrow that the TB Association participate in the local fund-raising program.

Mr. Washington stated the position of the Association in a letter sent to R. D. Warwick, executive director of the Iredell-Statesville United Fund, Inc., dated September 11. And the letter applies equally to the local United Fund agency. Here is the letter, verbatim, as addressed to Mr. Warwick:

"Dear Sir:

"The Board of Directors of the Iredell County Tuberculosis Association met tonight, September 11, for the purpose of acting upon your kind invitation to associate itself as a member of the Iredell-Statesville United Fund, Inc.

"We are a new organization, formed on April 1, of this year for the purpose of making available to the extent of our ability, facilities for the discovery, treatment and prevention of tuberculosis among the people of our county. In forming our organization we invited and received the assistance of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association in planning our year's work. We then negotiated a contract with

Town Receives Powell Bill Funds

Mooresville has received a check for $23,539.45 as its 1953 share of the Powell Bill Street Aid Funds, it was announced today by City Manager Robert H. Peck.

This is an increase of $1,001.30 over the $22,538.15 received here last year.

The allocation is based half upon the 1950 census of the cities in the state and half upon the number of non-highway street miles within the municipality.

Mr. Perkins reported that as he chased the car down the road, the driver threw liquor jar after liquor jar out of the car and backward in

AT END OF 2-WEEK PERIOD

School Enrollment Shows Increase

Compared with the first day of school enrollment figures, the enrollment of the Mooresville City Schools had increased 41 students at the end of the first two-week period of operation, it was announced today by Roland Morgan, superintendent of the local schools.

According to figures released by the superintendent's office, the comparative enrollments for the various schools are:

School	First Day	2 Wks
Senior High	540	553
Junior High	408	415
Park View	346	331
South	470	480
Dunbar High	80	88
Dunbar Elementary	295	311
Total	2137	2178

The change in the enrollment figures of South and Park View Schools is a result of the transfer of pupils from Park View to South. This was made necessary because of the over-crowded conditions at Park View School.

The increased enrollment for the school year 1953-54 over 1952-53 has made it necessary to use every available space in the Mooresville City Schools for classrooms, Mr. Morgan pointed out.

"Should the enrollment increase in 1954-55 the same as it did 1953-54, the system will be short four classrooms for white students, and two classrooms for Negro students," the superintendent declared.

"This being true," he added, "it is very urgent that each and every person become aware of the school needs and do all in their power to assist in the providing of adequate physical facilities for the students of the Mooresville City Schools."

"Don't forget the State Bond Election on October 3," Mr. Morgan pointed out. "If the bond issue is approved, it will provide some additional facilities for the Mooresville City Schools."

Mr. Morgan urged all persons who have not registered for the election on October 3 to do so on September 19. This date is the last day for registration for the School Bond issue.

As a result of the increased enrollment this year, the Mooresville City Schools have been allotted three additional elementary teachers — two in the white schools and one in the Negro school.

Iredell County Fair Will Open Sept. 21

The Iredell County Agricultural Fair, bigger and better than ever, will open on the Iredell Fairgrounds near Barium Springs, Monday, September 21. It will continue in full swing for six big days and nights, closing Saturday night, September 26.

The fair will feature agricultural and home exhibits, cattle and poultry shows, and school exhibits. There will be arena acts each night, and the John Marks Shows will be featured on the midway.

More than $4,000 in premiums will be awarded the exhibitors.

The fair is sponsored by the Statesville Kiwanis Club.

Diplomas Awarded Five Lowrance Hospital Nurses

Graduating exercises for the Lowrance Hospital Training School for Nurses were held at the Central Methodist Church Tuesday evening, with the Rev. James B. McLarty, pastor of the host church, delivering the address of the occasion.

Speaking on the subject, "What Is That In Thy Hand?", Mr. McLarty stated that nothing is common or ordinary when dedicated to the best. "The simplest things have far reaching results when dedicated to their highest use," he stated.

Mr. McLarty applied this hypothesis to three areas: science, life, and religion. He pointed out that we are custodians of a rich heritage won at bitter cost, that the American way of life — and that to each comes the challenge and opportunity of serving God and man with the materials we have at hand.

"A talent, God given, a voice, a personality to be dedicated in service are some of these materials," the speaker declared.

"God says to the lawyer, practice law and be a Christian! He says to the teacher, train wisely the molding life entrusted to your care, and be a Christian! To the doctor God says, practice the art of healing and be a Christian! And to the nurse he commands, minister to the sick and be a Christian!"

Concluding his address, the speaker urged the graduating class to use their God given talents for constructive ends, remembering

AT FAIR GROUNDS NEXT WEEK

J. Edgar Hoover Commends Sheriff Rumple's Exhibit

The Sheriff's Department will once again set up a Crime Prevention and Public Safety booth at the Iredell County Agriculture Fair.

A similar exhibit was displayed at the Fair last year, and more than 10,000 persons visited the booth at that time.

In its scope, this is the first exhibit of its kind to be seen in the State. Last year it won state wide recognition as to its medium for bringing to the citizens a message with respect to the crime problem and functions of the Sheriff's Department.

In a recent letter to Sheriff Rumple, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the F.B.I. stated in part:

"Crime is presenting an ever-increasing problem both to law enforcement officers and to the general public. Every citizen need be aware of the gravity of the situation and realize that as an individual, he, too, has the responsibility of exposing and suppressing lawlessness in his community.

"I was interested in learning of the Crime Prevention and Public Safety booth you are planning for your County Fair at Statesville, and your project certainly serves a vital function in bringing to the citizens of your area the seriousness of the crime problem and in offering suggestions for its solution."

Although the exhibit will be more or less a repetition of last year, several new features have been added.

In connection with the booth sound motion pictures will be shown. These films are primarily of an exploding one.

For the younger who rides a bicycle, the Bicycle Institute of America is furnishing as well as distributing cards entitled "Bicycling

Duke Power Will Install New System

Other Matters Passed On By Commissioners

Mooresville, in the not too distant future, will be a better lighted town, now that the Duke Power Company has been authorized to proceed with its plans to install new white way lighting on the two principal streets here.

This action was taken by the town commissioners at their regular monthly meeting Monday night.

Duke Power Company's plans call for the installing of new white way lighting on Main Street from McLelland avenue to Statesville avenue and on Broad street from McLelland avenue to Moore avenue. The fixtures will be the mercury vapor type, with 10,000 and 20,000 lumens (10 lumens equal one candlepower). These new lights will replace the existing ones which are 4,000 and 6,000 lumens.

New steel poles to hold the new lights will be placed on Main Street, and the scarcity of these at the present will hold up the project for several months. However, it is the hope of the Duke Power Company that the project can be completed early in the coming year.

The new lights, with their additional lumens, will cost the town an additional $2,500 per year, City Manager Robert Peck said.

The commissioners also changed the town's standard for street lights in the residential section. The new standard calls for a light in the middle of each block, 600 feet long or longer. This will add approximately 18 new street lights in the town's residential section. This work is to be carried to completion immediately.

The commissioners received a recommendation from the Town Planning Board for a major street plan for the Town of Mooresville. The town has been requested to have the following street extended:

Diplomas Awarded Five Lowrance Hospital Nurses

Graduating exercises for the Lowrance Hospital Training School for Nurses were held at the Central Methodist Church Tuesday evening, with the Rev. James B. McLarty, pastor of the host church, delivering the address of the occasion.

Speaking on the subject, "What Is That In Thy Hand?", Mr. McLarty stated that nothing is common or ordinary when dedicated to the best. "The simplest things have far reaching results when dedicated to their highest use," he stated.

Mr. McLarty applied this hypothesis to three areas: science, life, and religion. He pointed out that we are custodians of a rich heritage won at bitter cost, that the American way of life — and that to each comes the challenge and opportunity of serving God and man with the materials we have at hand.

"A talent, God given, a voice, a personality to be dedicated in service are some of these materials," the speaker declared.

"God says to the lawyer, practice law and be a Christian! He says to the teacher, train wisely the molding life entrusted to your care, and be a Christian! To the doctor God says, practice the art of healing and be a Christian! And to the nurse he commands, minister to the sick and be a Christian!"

Concluding his address, the speaker urged the graduating class to use their God given talents for constructive ends, remembering

The booklet will contain approximately 24 pages of helpful information and advice to the citizens. Almost every phase of public safety is covered by the booklet. Starting with a message from Sheriff Rumple telling how each citizen can cooperate with the law enforcement officers. The booklet continues with a chapter on what to do if "suspicions" are aroused, "Suggestions to House Owners," how to properly leave their houses for an evening, comments on locks and doors, solicitors, and peddlers, strangers in the community, servants, auto care to prevent theft, relationship of citizens to the juvenile delinquency problem, "Shoplifting Racket — Tricks of the Trade," "Training Good Dollars for Worthless Checks" and other important pieces of advice are offered. The Rev. W. E. West, retired Presbyterian minister of Mooresville, gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

current National Committeeman Bob Doughton has made no positive statement on the subject, reporters who interviewed him in Raleigh recently came away with the belief that Farmer Bob was disgusted with the appointment. Some go so far as to say that Mr. Doughton will be asked to be relieved of his post as North Carolina's head Democrat before the Scott-Lennon race gets under way. And some go so far as to say that Mr. Doughton will support Scott. It is said that he voted for him for Governor.

Certain it is that a large segment of the past General Assembly is disgruntled with Umstead's failure to give them a strong appointee to run the race against the Haw River favorite. This bodes ill for the Governor and his program in the next General Assembly. Furthermore, the Governor's handling of the prison set-up, his long delay in either firing or hiring Walter Anderson, hurt his popularity with the press and the people.

And there are those, Ralph Howland of the Charlotte Observer among them who say that Lieutenant-Governor Luther Hodges felt himself slighted by the Governor in the last session of the General Assembly. Political observers deduce from this that the Governor would support Stag Ballentine against Hodges in the next gubernatorial race. While we are no oracle in such matters, it would be our guess that Hodges would defeat Ballentine easily in such a race. Hodges is definitely top gubernatorial timber.

Governor Umstead's administration looks anything but rosy at this point, and the situation grows steadily worse. The sad part about it is that there is more than the Governor's program involved. It is a fight between the right and the left, between the radical philosophy of such men as Scott and the conservative philosophy of men like Bob Doughton, John Larkins, Ed O'Herrin, and others. It is a fight to determine whether North Carolina will continue its traditional program of progress from the right or follow the radical leadership toward the left. Men of Scott's ilk align urban against rural, capital against labor, brain against brawn. His type long ago won this crusade in such states as Georgia, Mississippi, and Arkansas. It has been the traditional pattern in North Carolina for these elements to work together in harmony. But Governor Umstead is leaving the door wide open for this element to win the battle. And the best minds of the Democratic Party in North Carolina don't like it.

the direction of the officer. This caused the officer to lose control of his car and it ran into a roadway embankment, and the rum-runner sped away. However, a short distance down the road, he came upon a road-block, turned around and headed back toward the wrecked car of Deputy Perkins. It was on this return trip that the rum-runner lost control of his car, which turned over in a lespedeza field. The driver made his getaway. The car a 1939 Pontiac with an Olds 88 motor was a complete loss. It contained two cases of white liquor, Deputy Perkins said.

City Schools Hold Health And Physical Education Workshop

The Mooresville City Schools held a Health and Physical Education Workshop Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, September 9 and 10. Wednesday afternoon, all teachers, teaching grades 1-8, met in South School at 2:30 for an hour-and-a-half meeting with Miss Helen Stuart, adviser in Health and Physical Education, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, North Carolina. At this meeting Miss Stuart discussed the importance of a well-planned and well-executed health and physical education program in the elementary schools. Miss Stuart stated that the first responsibility of the schools is to provide a healthful living situation for all of its pupils. A number of games and activities which are suitable for lower grades were discussed and participated in by the various teachers.

On Thursday afternoon the Junior High teachers and the health and physical education teachers of all the schools met in the gymnasium of the Mooresville High School. At this meeting Miss Stuart pointed out the importance of a well-planned and a well-executed health and physical education program. More advanced types of games and more technical health and physical education problems were discussed.

Wednesday evening a dinner was given in honor of the new teachers of the Mooresville City Schools. After the dinner Miss Stuart directed a recreational hour which consisted of games applicable to most any grade in school. Approximately 80 teachers were in attendance at this meeting.

He was elected District Governor of Rotary International for the 1953-54 fiscal year at the annual Rotary Convention in Paris, France, last May. He is one of the 212 District Governors supervising the activities of some 8,000 Rotary Clubs which have a membership of 372,000 business and professional executives in 86 countries and geographical regions throughout the world.

Wherever Rotary Clubs are located, their activities are similar to those of the Rotary Club of Mooresville because they are based on the same general objectives — developing better understanding and fellowship among business and professional men, promoting community betterment undertakings, raising the standards of business and professions, and fostering the advancement of good will, understanding and peace among all the peoples of the world.

Each year, this world-wide service organization continues to grow in numbers and in strength. During the past fiscal year, for example, 217 new Rotary Clubs were organized in 42 countries of North, South and Central America, Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Islands of the Pacific.

Lt. Cooper Back From Korea

First Lt. Walter A. Cooper, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Cooper, returned to the United States August 20, after a 13-months' tour of overseas duty, eight of which were spent in Korea.

During his Korean tour of duty, Lt. Cooper was awarded two commendation medals for outstanding leadership and valor in action. He also was cited and recommended for both the Silver Star and the Bronze Star, both of which medals are awarded for bravery above and beyond the call of duty. Action on the recommendations is now being taken by the War Department in Washington.

As an infantry platoon leader, Lt. Cooper saw a great deal of front-line duty in Korea, beginning with his arrival there last January, and continuing until the armistice was signed. He was wounded in action in the bitter battle for Pork Chop Hill, hospitalized for six days, and then returned to active duty. He received the purple heart. Two months before returning to the states he was promoted to first lieutenant.

Lt. Cooper received his B.S. degree in business administration from The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., class of 1951. He also received his commission as a 2nd Lt., infantry, upon graduation, and went on active duty at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., 14 days later.

He plans to take a two-year post-graduate course in hospital administration at the Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

The trials will get underway at 10 o'clock, with the entry fee being $3. There will be prizes for each race in addition to a grand prize of approximately $100.

The trials will be held rain or shine, and all profits will be used for restocking game.

No charge will be made for fishing on this day, and there will be a $10 prize for the largest fish caught Saturday.

Fall Golf Tourney Underway

Interest in Mooresville Mills' annual fall golf tournament heightened this week as finalists girded themselves for the playoffs Saturday.

In the championship flight, Norman Ferguson defeated Harold Raby to win a place in the finals. He will play the winner of the Wally Alcrutz-John Jenkins match. The latter two were tied up after 18 holes and were to play an additional nine sometime this week.

Bob Moore defeated Buford Compton in the first flight consolation and Albert Copelan, Jr., beat David Smith in semi-final play. Moore and Copelan will be paired in the finals Saturday.

Leighton Horton and Bill Rader are finalists in second flight play. Horton defeated Robert South and Rader beat Ches Marlowe in the semi-finals to gain a berth in the playoffs.

Considerable interest was also evidenced this week in Mooresville's first women's tournament. Although only eight women golfers are participating, the competition is keen, says Golf Coach Norman Ferguson.

Mary McKnight defeated Ruth Dyson, Margaret South defeated Mrs. Robert Peck, Nellie Horton beat Lucy Cobb and the Loraine Cox-Mrs. John Beam match was yet to be played.

The semi-finals will be held this week with McKnight playing South and Horton playing the winner of the Cox-Beam match.

Landis Yellow Jackets Sting Blue Devils, 27-7

A young and inexperienced Mooresville High School football team lost to the seasoned Landis High School eleven, 27 to 7, here Friday night. The game, a non-conference one, was played on the Junior High School athletic field.

Left end Blythe Gabriel saved the day for the Mooresville High Blue Devils — saved them, that is, from a shutout. Midway in the fourth and final quarter, he scooped up a fumble on the part of the Landis Yellow Jackets and ran 70 yards for a touchdown.

The Yellow Jackets scored in every period, a safety and a touchdown in the initial period, another six points in the second quarter, another touchdown in the third period, and seven points in the final quarter.

Shortly after the game got underway, Buddy Byrd threw Bennett Cox behind the Blue Devil goal line for a safety to give Landis a 2 to 0 lead.

Minutes later Lawrence Robinson and Byrd picked up a first down for the Yellow Jackets, and then Grady Thomas handed off to Robinson who ran 32 yards for the Yellow Jackets' first touchdown.

Corky Overcash returned a poor Landis kickoff to his 35 where play bogged down and Mac Brawley kicked to midfield. Corky Overcash intercepted a Landis pass on the Blue Devil 42 and ran it back to the Landis 49. Brawley passed to Gabriel for 25 yards and then hit through left guard for 11 more yards. The Blue Devils moved the ball downfield to the four yard line before the Yellow Jackets took over on downs.

Early in the second quarter, a long pass, Thomas to Larry Graham, set the stage for Landis' second quarter touchdown. After completing the pass, Thomas laterated to Robinson who scampered around right end for 18 yards. Thomas made a short pass over the line to Graham for eight yards. Robinson hit center for six yards to the three-yard line. Robinson plunged over for a score on the next play.

Landis fumbled and the Blue Devils recovered on the Mooresville 30 as the third quarter got underway. Coz picked up 10 yards and Landis drew a 15-yard penalty for illegal use of the hands. However, the Mooresville eleven could not cash in on the break and Brawley kicked. Robinson hit the Mooresville line for 10 yards and on the next play, a bootleg play by quarterback Thomas, Robinson took the ball on a 61 yard dash into pay dirt.

The Blue Devils took on new life, so to speak, in the fourth quarter and shortly after Landis had scored its fourth and final touchdown of the game, plus the extra point, the home stands went wild with excitement as Brawley gathered in a Landis fumble and ran 70 yards for a Mooresville touchdown. Landis was off side and the wide extra point kick was awarded to the Blue Devils.

Mooresville had five first downs, compared with 10 for the Yellow Jackets. Mooresville attempted seven passes, completed three of them for a gain of 45 yards. Landis completed four out of seven passes for a gain of 70 yards.

Mooresville intercepted one Landis pass, and Landis intercepted two Mooresville passes.

The starting lineup:

Pos.	Landis (27)	Moore (7)

Dr. Ernest N. Orr Addresses Lions Monday Evening

Dr. Earnest Neal Orr, pastor of the ARP Church, addressed the Lions Club at its regular meeting at the War Memorial Building Monday evening.

Dr. Orr spoke on "Beliefs and Practices." "The great need in the world today," he said, is that of "bringing our practices up to our ideals."

"I've never been a member of the Lions Club," he continued, "but I have long admired the work you do — aiding the needy, the blind, the distressed. That's Christ-like, and I congratulate you. Good work comes out of the heart of that one who told the Good Samaritan story.

"We do what we believe, hence the importance of beliefs. A survey shows that 99 percent of Americans believe in God; 91 percent believe that God is best described as a loving father; 96 percent believe in the historical Christ, and 86 percent that he is the son of God."

Dr. Orr was quoting from a recent nation-wide survey of religion in the United States. He continued:

"The survey further shows that 95 percent of Americans say religion is important in their lives; 51 percent that this life has been given us as a place of preparation for a better world.

"Thirty-two per cent of all Americans attend Church once a week, 32 percent never attend, while 36 percent attend only occasionally.

"My point," Dr. Orr concluded, "is that having these (predominantly) Christian beliefs, we Americans should attend only those churches where God is taught as the supreme deity, and Christ as the saviour of the world."

Following Dr. Orr's address, Lions Club President Fred Shew announced that a safety program will be held at the next regular meeting, and that Col. A. B. Lentz, commander of the Highway Patrol, will be the speaker. Mr. Mourne and Shepherd Lions will be present at this meeting.

Navy Sale Nets Million

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 — The Navy broke a 30-year precedent recently when it held an auction to dispose of surplus equipment rather than sell it by the customary sealed bid method.

The sale totaled more than one million dollars and the top brass were pleased at the results.

Items auctioned off included ships' hulls, diving suits, fog dispensers, hospital equipment, radar sets, airplane engines, lawn mowers and an upright piano.

In this age of high finance and need for higher education, many a father has to buckle down and start working his son's way through college.

Ochler, the barbecue king of this section, and everyone who has partaken of this delicious meat, can attest to its tastiness and which will pacify the most craving appetite for this kind of meat, of course there will be the usual trimmings. FINE CHOICE . . . This column wishes to extend to the new President, Jack Duffy of the Mooresville Merchants Association best wishes for the coming year, and we feel safe in predicting for the association one of the best ever experienced since the organization of this community banded group of business men and women. Mr. Duffy who is manager of the Blackwelder Furniture Store in Mooresville has made many staunch friends since coming into our midst, and we know that he will at all times work for the best interests of the town, and all that means more for the advancement and development of everything that will tend to make the town better from every standpoint, and will at all times work for everything that will mean a bigger and better town in which to live and do business in. With such a progressive citizen as Vice-President to work with him, Mr. Wally Alrutz, local merchant, and the fine staff of directors, we are expecting to have a most wonderful report at the end of the term of office of these associates. The membership at the present time comprises the majority of business firms of the town, and it should have the moral and financial support of every firm, regardless of size or nature. We would also commend the retiring officers for the fine job accomplished during the year just ended. The new president stated that the association is now making plans for one of the biggest trade promotions ever attempted by the merchants of Mooresville. This event will take place some time during the month of October.

OVERSIGHT . . . This writer regrets that the name of Fletcher Davis, photographer, was omitted from the two local photos appearing in the Lotus Miller Fashion Shop advertisement in last weeks' Tribune. These photographs were made by Fletcher, who did a wonderful job in bringing out the lines and perfect likeness of not only the two young ladies, but the apparel they were wearing. Fletcher is doing all the photo work on young ladies who appear in ads of this firm.

RETURNS . . . Mrs. Robert (Elsie) Lytle is again in the food serving business. Mrs. Lytle, who has had a number of years of experience in operating cafes, is announcing that she has taken over the North Grill, which is located in one of the new Gibson buildings, just off Statesville Avenue, on Patterson Avenue. She will give the best service possible along her lines, and extends to her many friends and the public a cordial invitation to visit her in her new location. She will make a specialty in serving fine steaks, and chicken in boxes to take out. She will also serve special Sunday dinners. You can also have curb service if desired.

Keeter's Food Store Plans 3-Day Grand Opening Event

Keeter's Food Store, immediate successor to M. S. Gabriel Co., will have its grand opening today (Thursday), Friday, and Saturday.

During these three days, everyone who visits the store may register for food baskets and other free gifts which will be given away Saturday. You do not have to be present to win. A drawing will be held every hour, on the hour, Saturday from 7 a. m. until closing time.

Harry Keeter, Iredell county commissioner and Mooresville business man, is owner of the store, having recently purchased the stock and fixtures from the heirs of the late M. S. Gabriel.

Since purchasing the business, the interior of the store has been completely renovated. The chief features of the renovation program were the installation of a tile floor and flourescent lighting fixtures. The interior of the building also was given a fresh coat of paint.

Ralph Barker, long-time resident of Mooresville, has been named manager of the store. He has had 16 years of experience in the grocery business, six years with the late Mr. Gabriel and 10 years as manager of a store in the Pender Grocery Company chain. During the past three years, Mr. Barker has worked as local agent for the Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Tennessee. Married, Mr. Barker and his family reside at 10 Culp avenue.

The store will carry a complete line of groceries, meats, frozen foods, and produce. The store will be operated on the semi-service plan.

Bob Sinclair is manager of the store's meat department, and other members of the store's personnel are Howard Moore and Genie Barker. Additional help will be employed on Saturdays.

Cops Had His Auto And Parking Tickets

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 15 —Freeman Crosslin reported to police his auto was missing.

"We have it. Come on down," they said.

A little earlier, a traffic officer ticketing Crosslin's car for overparking, saw something that looked familiar poking out of the glove compartment—22 overparking tickets.

The maximum penalty could be $950.50 plus $3.50 towing costs police said.

Malaria is carried to human beings by mosquitoes. It can be prevented by wiping out the breeding places of mosquitoes — swamps, pools of still water, ponds, or even water standing in old, unused barrels or tin cans.

Lutheran Young People Plan Youth Sunday

The young people of St. Mark's Lutheran Church will observe Youth Sunday next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. Throughout the United Lutheran Church, youth groups have set aside this day to present special programs in their congregations. The Luther League of the local congregation is cooperating in this observance. Various parts in the service will be led by members of the St. Mark's youth group.

The program will center about "Martin Luther's Seal," its meaning and significance. A large painting of the seal in colors will be used. Characters will bring out the ideas that led Luther to design it for his coat of arms. The meaning of the cross within the heart on the background of blue will be explained. Down through the years this symbol has been used in the literature, and on the furnishings of the Lutheran church. It is a reminder of some of the great central teachings of the Christian faith. These teachings will be emphasized during the program.

Each September, Youth Sunday is observed as a part of the fall activities of the Youth Groups throughout the United Lutheran Church in America. It is sponsored in the local congregation by the Luther League.

Mooresville In Other Years

(Mooresville In 1927—25 Years Ago)

*—For a number of days during the beautiful clear weather many airplanes have passed over the city, some going south, some east and others in a westerly direction. Usually there are two planes, one flying apparently a few hundred yards apart from the other and a little to the front.

—Friday morning many people will be on the alert to see Colonel Lindberg pass over en route from the South to Winston-Salem and Greensboro, where he is to land and make brief addresses. Great preparations are being made to give the distinguished aviator a great reception in the two cities named above and for North Carolina.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Deaton spent last Thursday at Mountain Park school with their son, Clarence Miller Deaton. Mr. and Mrs. Deaton were very much pleased with the institution and after their visit there spent several hours at Roaring Gap taking in the beautiful mountain scenery in that vicinity.

—Prof. James O. Rodgers of this place has been elected president of the Principal's Club of Winston-Salem, it was announced last Wednesday. Prof. Rodgers is principal of the Old Town School at that place. The purpose of the club is to hold discussions on the problems of interest to all principals in the county.

—Miss Katherine Shimpock entertained last Saturday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock, at her home on McNeely avenue, quite a group of young people. The home was decorated throughout with roses, marigolds and zinnias. On the lawn hanging baskets with wandering jew and ivy were attractively arranged about the rustic seats under the trees. Several games were played, after which tallies were passed and the most exciting game of the evening, "Five minute dates," was played. The hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. John Shimpock, served block ice cream, cake and mints. The following young folks were in attendance: Royce Alexander, Hazel Brantley, Pauline Deaton, Beatrice McKay, Moore Caldwell, Everette Connelly, Martha Johnston, James Semple, Mildred Templeton, Walter Semple, Robert Ballard, Bruce Caldwell, Mary Belle Templeton, Robert Caldwell, Catherine Templeton, Willis Honeycutt, Launah Parker, Henry M. Kelly, Louise Gudger, John Patterson, Daisy Parks, Kenneth Johnston, J. Mack Bradford, Wilmice Deal, Irene Smith, Paul Brawley, Ruth Brantley, Buster Brown, Joe Patterson, George Carlton, Mason Poston, Joe Thompson, Marian Hopper, Fred Caldwell.

—Miss Mabel Howard is teaching at Mt. Ulla school this year.

—Mr. R. A. Fairchild and family, of Cherryville, spent the last week end here with relatives.

—Robert Hartness left Tuesday for Columbus, Ohio, where he will resume studies at the University of Ohio.

—Mr. Eddie Stine, who travels out of Philadelphia, is spending a few days here visiting his mother, Mrs. J. W. Murdock.

Autoist And Wife, In Separate Cars, Nabbed For Speed

Oklahoma City, Sept. 15 — Traffic cops equipped with radar did a double take.

First they stopped a man for speeding. He became nervous at the delay.

"What's your hurry?" Sgt. Wayne Lawson asked suspiciously.

The motorist blushed. "My wife will be leaving home any minute now, and she'll come right by this spot. Frankly, I wanted to warn her."

At that moment, Lawson said, the radar picked up another speeder. It was the man's wife.

Rotarians Hear Korean Veteran

Warrant Officer O. B. Bachner, who has just returned to the states after a 21-month tour of duty in Korea, was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Mooresville Rotary Club last Thursday night at the War Memorial Building.

He was introduced by his brother-in-law, Rotarian Charlie Newton.

Warrant Officer Bachner, who has been in the Army 13 years, spoke of the country of Korea, its people, and their food. His remarks were most interesting and were well received by the Rotarians. A question and answer session following Mr. Bachner's talk.

Stationed in Pusan, Warrant Officer Bachner had charge of the Army's refrigeration units in that area. He is currently spending a 30-day furlough here with his family. He is a native of Pennsylvania.

The district governor of Rotary will visit the Mooresville club this (Thursday) evening.

State Fair Marks 100th Anniversary

Agriculture's annual "show window," the North Carolina State Fair, will start a new century of service as an educational and inspirational institution when the 1953 exposition is held in Raleigh October 20-24.

Robert W. Shoffner, assistant director of the State College Agricultural Extension Service who serves as No. 1 aide to Dr. J. S. Dorton, State Fair manager, says the goal this year is to have "all 100 counties of the State represented with educational exhibits on the 100th anniversary of the State Fair." He predicts the goal will be reached through stimulated effort on the part of the county farm and home agents and other agricultural leaders.

"Last year," said Shoffner, "we had 1,169 individual and group exhibitors from 85 counties. Of the 15 'missing counties,' eight had exhibits in the 1951 Fair. This means that only seven of North Carolina's 100 counties have not been represented during the past two years. These are: Dare, McDowell, Pamlico, Polk, Richmond, Transylvania and Washington."

The Extension administrator and fair leader said copies of the 1953 State Fair catalog and premium list have been distributed to all previous exhibitors and to other agricultural leaders. He urged that other prospective exhibitors write immediately to the Manager, State Fair, P. O. Box 1388, Raleigh for their free copy of the publication.

The first State Fair was held in Raleigh October 18-21, 1853 under the sponsorship of the old N. C. Agricultural Society. The site was a 16-acre tract now familiar to travelers on U. S. Highway 64-E through a historical marker on Raleigh's New Bern Avenue, 10 blocks east of the Capitol.

The Fair has been a division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture since 1937 and the 140-acre fairgrounds cover 288 acres along U. S. Highway No. 1, five miles west of the State Capitol.

The Rev. F. R. Davis is pastor of the church.

Spare The Statistics, We're Doing All Right

We're getting tired of seeing North Carolina near the bottom of the heap in just about every statistical compilation on the 48 states—44th in this, forty-fifth in that. Knowing the state as we do and the progress it has made in every way within the past decade we are willing to offer it and its achievements as proof that figures quite often fail to tell the true story.

Just one evidence among many, of its progressiveness is its school bus system, one of the best in the country. It is more noteworthy because of the type of drivers it has—all youngsters between the ages of 16 and nineteen years. The noteworthy becomes unusual when facts are marshalled forth, proving that these young drivers are the safest in the country. Last year they drove 743,480 miles—equal to 30 trips around the world—and carried a million child passengers without a single serious accident or injury.

Here at Mooresville the picture is equally auspicious. The school system operates six buses—four for white students, two for colored—and each bus travels an average of about 20 miles a day. In the past eight years there has been only one accident, and it was only a minor one in which one youngster was slightly injured. As elsewhere throughout the state, all drivers are high school students, both boys and girls. They receive about $25 a month for their services, which is about an eighth of the salary paid adult drivers in states not employing student drivers. It is plain to see that our system is beneficial in several ways over other systems: first, it saves the taxpayers a great deal of money; second it provides part-time jobs for students, and in such a way that they can take advantage of them without seriously affecting any of their other activities; and finally, it provides the utmost of safety to the child passengers.

The matter of child safety is assured in three ways. First, the selection of drivers is left to the school principal, who exercises the greatest care. His selection must then be approved by the School Board. Secondly, the prospective driver is given written and road tests by local and state officials to determine his driving skill. Thirdly, the state allows only the strongest, reinforced steel buses to be used, and exercises the greatest vigilance in enforcing the laws pertaining to school-bus operation. Motorists have learned to accord the greatest respect to school buses, and few ever violate the law which stipulates that no motor vehicle may proceed around a stopped school bus, but must wait until the bus is in motion before passing. It has been pointed out that children who ride school buses are considerably safer than those who walk to and from school. This is an indisputable fact.

The school bus situation is only one instance of North Carolina's progressiveness, and we cite it here to prove our contention that the statisticians who compile those formidable figures on the relative stature of the respective states can never present the real North Carolina to the rest of the country with their digits and zeros. They'll just have to come here and live to find out the real story—and how wrong figures can be.

Want A Degree In Illiterate Education?

Here is a remark that convinces us that some of our educators either are fools or are unable to express themselves effectively—either of which faults should be grounds for disqualifying them for their profession.

Speaking of modern educational methods, the principal of a Champaign (Ill.) junior high school recently said, "We shall some day accept the thought that it is just as illogical to assume that every boy must be able to read as it is that each one must be able to perform on the violin, that it is no more reasonable to require that each girl shall spell well than it is that each one shall bake a good cherry pie."

The inference we draw from the principal's remark is that certain highly-remunerative skills, such as automotive mechanics, do not call for the ability to read. And this is giving the professor the benefit of the doubt, since his syntax left room for considerable speculation, most of the sort not complimentary to his intelligence.

Even if this is what he meant, he proved that he himself isn't exactly saturated with erudition. Intelligent educators know that a knowledge of language, both written and oral, is an absolute necessity for profound thinking. In fact, most will contend that effective thinking ends at the edge of the vocabulary.

But aside from that, it seems the utmost of absurdity to compare the skill of reading with that of playing a violin. The disparity of the two skills, as represented by the respective practicing groups, is much too great for a fair comparison. Thus, in addition to his other defects, we may chalk up to the principal a faulty conception of analogy, something that shouldn't happen to a dog, not to say a school teacher.

Reading, in our estimation, is as fundamental, as basic a tool as the earth upon which the foundation of houses must rest. No one could call himself educated who didn't know how to read; yet the principal, whose business is education, implies that one may be educated and yet not know how to read. If this wasn't his implication then he must have been talking about subnormal minds when he said it is "illogical to assume that every boy must be able to read."

Reading that remark over again—a remark the authorship of which would shame a grade school urchin, and most certainly any intelligent educator — we shudder for the future of education in this country if a preponderance of educators such as the high school principal ever get control of it. In the absence of such a catastrophe, our advice to the professor would be "go back to school, boy." Any way you look at it, he certainly needs to.

A Threat To Freedom Is Everyone's Fight

Last spring a union called a strike of two-months duration against a power and light utility serving the vast and congested Los Angeles region. Only the fact that loyal employes stayed on the job and kept the service going prevented the gravest sort of emergency in an area in which some 3,000,000 people live.

The basic issue of the strike was not wages or working conditions or any such matter. It was whether the company would accept the principle of compulsory union membership — in other words, whether the company would agree that a man must join the union and pay it dues, regardless of his wishes, before he could earn a living.

In a recent issue of The Freeman magazine, Leo Wolman of Columbia University discussed the strike and its significance. He wrote that the company "consistently held that it had neither the legal nor the moral right to force anyone into a union. By taking this position, the company has shown more strength and foresight than our federal government . . . In fact, this strike and the way it was handled by the company's management were unique in the recent history of this type of episode . . . The company might, as many enterprises have done, have compromised the issues and brought the conflict to a quick end. It refused to pay the price of surrendering underlying principles of human conduct and piling up greater trouble in the future for the vast community it serves, the welfare of its employes, and its own prosperity."

It is impossible for a reasonable man to see how any private organization can be allowed to shut down a vital public service. And no one who honestly believes in freedom and the dignity of the individual can argue that the right of a man to earn a living must be predicated upon his belonging to or not belonging to any organization. This strike, and its settlement, is something of a milestone in the endless battle for human liberty.

History Lesson

Remember Harry Truman? He is the former president who, after he had sent American troops into the Korean "police action," quipped that the United States had never lost a war, and wouldn't lose this one. He was the Commander-in-Chief who summarily removed General Douglas MacArthur from command, because he feared the General's plans for winning the war might offend the Russians, who ordered a war of "containment," and who gave the enemy sanctuary beyond the Yalu River boundary of the Korean peninsula.

In a speech before the Disabled American Veterans convention in Kansas City the other day, Mr. Truman declared that "the only way to meet the threat of the Russians is with force." Hitler and Mussolini, he said, were second-raters compared with the Russians, and he warned that "we will be in for another world war" if we fail to accept the responsibilities we should have assumed after World War II.

There must have been at least some in his audience whose blood remains in Korea. We wonder what they were thinking.

Rural And Durable, The Singing Convention

Occasionally we see about an inch of print in a newspaper announcing an impending event that is dear to the heart of many a Southerner. It's a custom peculiar to the South, and one that satisfies at once man's longing for sociability, entertainment and group participation.

We're talking about the "singing convention." Like the old-fashioned camp meeting, it's always something more than a mere local get-together. In fact, it is a custom that could hardly survive with anything less than its breadth of appeal and patronage. People from far and near attend; hence the need for newspaper stories announcing the time and place.

The singing convention always has been largely an institution for rural folks. Perhaps this accounts in some measure for its durability. While a few urbanites do attend these meetings, they usually do so in a professional capacity as entertainers whose radio and television shows depend upon the patronage of the rural people: They're the "gospel" quartets and trios that may be heard every day over local radio and television stations. Attending these singing conventions is just another day's work for them, and an unpaid one at that. For this is the accepted way to keep up their public relations with their audiences — by appearing, gratis, in person.

One not familiar with the type of songs sung at these affairs would be a bit disconcerted at first. All, of course, are "sacred" songs. But most are a far cry from the traditional songs found in the hymnals of the city churches. They have long since yielded to the boogie beat of the jazz age which had its beginning in the South. There is syncopation galore, and such variations of tempo and arrangement as never was heard in Tin Pan Alley or elsewhere.

City people call this type of music queer, because it's written in shaped notes instead of in the conventional round ones. There is a shape to represent each of the tones of an octave, beginning with the keynote "do," and continuing up the scale to the eighth, or last note of the octave.

Most of the singing convention devotees are well versed in this sort of music and pride themselves on being able to sing a new song instantly without practicing on it. Members of the fraternity call this ability "sight reading." It often happens that before the singing begins, everyone gets in a bit of practice by singing the notes, each part singing his or her respective notes — altos, tenors, basses and sopranos. The more uppity of the cult now label the parts as first and second tenor, bass and baritone, but the old timers still call them by the first-designated titles. When an assembly of several hundred persons starts this sort of note-practicing, he do ra mi fa's fill the room to bursting with a veritable babel of indecipherable utterances — indecipherable, that is, to the uninitiated.

But when the real singing begins—ah, that is a different matter. Various leaders, selected by rather strict protocol from the audience, depending on ability, seniority and fame, take their turns directing a song or two, taking suggestions from the audience as to which song to sing. More often than not it will be one written in four-four or march time, with plenty of off-beat tintinnabulations by the wizard at the piano. They make the rafters ring. Repressions, guilt complexes and the sort of neuroses that drive men to drink must surely yield to this atmosphere — if you are one who has the love of it in your blood. Freud might even have called it sublimation; but the good people just call it having a good time.

Yep, city folks don't know what they're missing. And considering their cosmopolitan intolerance of "shaped notes" and the marriage of jazz to sacred music, perhaps it's just as well. The indoctrination necessary for turning them into a singing convention devotee would take too long, and a lot of good singing would go unappreciated.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS

From The Male Point Of View, Falsie'll Do

Why do we call a chew of tobacco a quid? What were falsies and corsets called a century ago? What are the origins of round robin, blue Monday, bark barrel and tell it to the Marines? What was the first telephone known as and what did one say when answering it?

For solutions to these mysteries we recommend a nice bit of light summer reading in the form of Mario Pei's The Story of English, from which we have gleaned the following information.

Quid comes from "Quid rides?" which a new-rich tobacco manufacturer inscribed on the side of his carriage. It meant "What are you laughing at?" but people seeing it got the idea that Mr. Quid was riding around to advertise his product, so they called it a quid.

Falsies used to be known as palpitators and corsets as form-compressors.

Round robin comes from the French rond ruban, a method of making remonstrances signed in circular form so that nobody's name would be at the top.

Blue Monday owes its origin to the 18th century naval practice of listing offenses during the week and flogging for them on Monday.

Pork barrel goes back to Southern planters' distribution of food to slaves.

"Tell it to the Marines" was what Charles II said when an admiral told him he had been a flying fish.

Incidentally the name Mae West, given to the life preserver jacket used by the Royal Air Force, received the blessing of Miss West herself who said that she would be happy to think that such a garment bearing her name would "supply the woman's touch while the boys were flying around nights."

The telephone, when Bell first put it on the market, was known as the harmonic telegraph, and you didn't say "Hello," you said, "Ahoy."

And anybody who happens not to know how the Jacksonian political party got its name can look it up in Webster's Unabridged.

Cornerstone Comment . . .

BY CLOICE BURRELL

Postmaster Ben Houston isn't old enough to start thinking about pensions and social security benefits, but he can remember Mooresville when it was considerably different from the town of today.

One of his most vivid recollections is of the day he met Thomas A. Edison at the Goodman Drug Store. The year was 1906. Mr. Edison and company were enroute, via horseless carriage, to inspect tin mines in Lincoln County. An earlier acquaintanceship with George C. Goodman, owner of the drug store, and with Arthur Libby, who at that time was visiting his brother-in-law, Jim Steele, in Mooresville, had prompted Mr. Edison to stop here for a short visit.

Mr. Houston says childish curiosity was responsible for his meeting Mr. Edison. A crowd had gathered at Goodman's Drug Store on this particular day, and it was while he was investigating the cause of it that Mr. Goodman spotted him and asked him if he knew the way to the Jim Steele residence. He did he did; so he got the job of directing Mr. Edison and company to the Steele home. Mr. Houston says he was about ten years old at that time. Mrs. Libby, wife of Arthur Libby, now lives here in Mooresville.

I asked Mr. Houston whether he had noticed Mr. Edison's deafness, or observed him using an ear horn. He replied that at the time he didn't even know who Mr. Edison was, and had no idea that he was hard of hearing.

* * * *

If Mr. Houston was insufficiently impressed with the great Thomas A. Edison, perhaps Mr. Edison likewise was insufficiently impressed with his ten-year-old guide who later was to become mayor of the town and finally its postmaster.

Mr. Houston, as all long-time residents know, was mayor of Mooresville in 1932-34. During his term of office he witnessed among other things Main Street getting its first decent paving, and the death of a retired man who leaped to his death from a hotel balcony on Main Street, after first serving notice that he intended to do precisely that.

During his term as mayor he and Con Johnston were instrumental in getting the present post office building built. Prior to its completion in 1936, the post office was housed in a succession of different buildings up and down Main Street. He and Mr. Johnston went to Washington in 1932, politicked back and forth between Rep. Doughton and Postmaster General Farley, and succeeded in getting the appropriation for the new building.

Mr. Houston was appointed postmaster here July 28, 1947. The appointment was made by Congress at 3 o'clock in the morning, just as it was about to adjourn the session.

* * * *

The "good old days" in Mooresville wouldn't have impressed the average resident today, thinks Mr. Houston. He remembers when mud was knee-deep on the main drag, and when farmers watered their teams at pumps up and down the street. There was a pump in front of the now Piedmont Bank, one in front of Goodman's Drug Store, and another near the old Colvard Furniture Store. There were no electric lights—only a few kerosene lamps widely scattered.

The railroad station was the focal point in the every-day life of the town. Crowds gathered to witness the arrival of each train, which brought mail, freight and traveling salesmen aplenty. And quite often the trains brought nationally known candidates. Once, for example, Mr. Houston heard Vice-Presidential nominee Calvin Coolidge speak from the rear platform of a train in the railroad yards near the depot.

About the only thing which hasn't shown much improvement during the past 40 years, Mr. Houston thinks, is the city jail. In the early 1900's the town had a wooden jail, situated back of Moor Mills' plant number 1. Today the town has no jail at all, but expects to have one eventually when the new city hall is built. Mr. Houston remembers the time a man tried to burn his way out of the old wooden jail by setting a blanket afire. He succeeded only in burning himself to death.

TAR HEEL FARMING IS BIG!

With about one-third of North Carolina's population interested in agriculture, it is interesting to note that their 290,000 farms had a cash income of $955 million in 1952. This amount equals the total income of 380,000 fully employed average textile workers! The ever-increasing farm income in our state goes far in helping to make North Carolina a better place in which to work, play and live for all of us.

Another contributing factor to more pleasant living for North Carolinians is the brewing industry's self-regulation program where brewers, wholesalers and retailers—in counties where malt beverage sales are permitted—under State control—cooperate to maintain wholesome conditions for the legal sale of beer and ale.

He Is Really An Old Soak

Hutchinson, Kan., Sept. 15 — What began as just another bath stretched into a 48-hour soaking for a 77-year-old Hutchinson man. S. E. Drummond climbed into the tub at his home, where he lived alone. Then he became too weak to get out.

Two days later, neighbors, worried because they hadn't seen him, called police. Officers entered the home and helped Drummond from the tub. Drummond suffered no ill effects from his ordeal, but he admitted he did get "sort of hungry."

"I guess I drank gallons and gallons of water," he said.

TOMMY AND MILLEUR

Iredell Fair To Feature Knockabout Comedy Team

How often have you heard performers claim "We're knockin' 'em dead."

Tommy & Milleur, knockabout comedy team engaged by the Iredell County Fair for the week of September 21 to 26, have their own variation on that formula. They practically knock themselves dead at each performance and they find that audience reaction pretty much takes care of itself.

The act consists of original chair tumbling routines performed at a brisk pace, spiced with eccentric bits and clever pantomime. It is knock-about comedy with a mirthful content that scores heavily with audiences. Confronted with an ordinary chair, the boys can do anything with it — anything, that is, except sit still. They will climb over the back of it, or take it with them through tumbling evolutions, or get tangled up in the rungs in a way that outrages the ordinary person's ideas of anatomy.

In the words of the boys themselves: "We never attempt anything the easy way when a trick or comedy sequence can be done in a more complicated manner. We play it strictly for laughs. Our bag of tricks includes eccentric dancing, body bumps, rapid-fire gags, and all kinds of balancing feats in which we practically commit suicide the hard way."

And now we shall take you backstage and let you in on a bit of professional gossip. Tommy & Milleur are in reality just a couple of great acrobats gone wrong. That is to say, they are members of the internationally famous teeter-board act known as the Five Amandi-Ricardys, also included in the grandstand bill at the Iredell County Fair for the week of September 21 to 26.

Both acts are appearing under the exclusive management of George A. Hamid & Son of New York City.

Power For You

A half century ago, the world was living without automobiles. Today we jump into a soft seat, touch a starter and roll smoothly off in comfortable dependable transportation. We give little thought to the long difficult years of experimentation, which made possible the now efficient modern automobile.

The engineer's problem was to make an obdurate metal and steel animal eat and digest gasoline and transform it into power that moves wheels.

Man's part in this miracle, which is a transformation of energy, has received the plaudits of the world. Yet man has only contributed a minor part. Electricity, an illusive, invisible intangible power, which God provided for man, made the gasoline engine possible. Without a spark, gasoline is only a liquid.

The human body, like the material in an automobile, would be dead without the current of life which pulsates through it. Engines are rated by the horse power which they can generate. Today instead of two horses pulling a surry with five passengers we have the equivalent of many horses, as high as 160 in some passenger cars. This we call progress and it is.

If such is possible in mechanical engineering, what should be the potential progress in the human creature, made in the spiritual image of his maker?

The current of God's life within man bespeaks the existence of a power beside which mechanical power is small. But that power would not be horse power, but spirit power — power to overcome, power to master the problems of human relations, power to bring peace to the human mind and heart.

Millions daily drag their way through the difficulties of life in chaos and discord. They resemble the old model automobiles, puffing, wheezing, grinding, groaning their way along the dusty, bumpy roads of life.

Had they the vision, the faith and the persistence of the engineers who gave us the modern automobile, they would be conscious of the latent power available within them. They would embrace the principles of a dynamic Christian life. They would comply with the spiritual laws of power. They would harness the Power of the Almighty. They would launch out on the great eternal highway. That highway is not without its hills, its crossroads and intersections, but with the Power that comes from Divine Consciousness, those hills can be surmounted and with the Master Road Map there will be guiding wisdom.

This is the true message of real religion. Christian living is not martyrdom, resignation and weakness, but victory, courage and power. Such a life does not groan in discordant despair. It vibrates with harmony, peace and true adventure.

There is now 11 per cent more money in circulation, as a result of Federal borrowing and credit policies, than there was at the start of the Korean war, and each individual U. S. dollar has lost value in almost that proportion, says the Family Economics Bureau of Minneapolis.

Refusing to wait for the Federal government to complete an irrigation system from Grand Coulee dam, farmers at Moses Lake, Wash., pumped lake water at their own expense to reclaim 6,000 rich acres of farmland, says the magazine U.S.A.

Treat Them Kindly!

No matter what your job, you usually need some kind of machines, tools or equipment to do the job right.

Whether you work in a factory, office, store or other type of business, there are always certain "tools" that go along with your job.

The typist needs her typewriter, the truck driver needs his truck. The machinist needs his machine, the bookkeeper needs his ledgers.

Actually, without such machines, tools and equipment, none of us would be able to do our jobs properly. And—in some cases—without such equipment—we wouldn't even have a job.

The equipment which goeslong with our jobs is designed to help us do our work easier, faster and better. Just imagine how few letters a stenographer would be able to turn out each day without a typewriter.

So, it's just good sound common sense to give the best of care to the machines, tools or equipment which are part of our job. Without them, what would we be?

Machines, tools and equipment help you. So treat them kindly. Take good care of them. Don't let them be damaged. Just as you wouldn't want to loose your hands, you couldn't get along either without the "tools of your job."

WHAT'S NEW — Industrial research has developed a method of preserving meats vegetables, etc., by X-raying them with radiations of comparatively low voltage.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN: An enterprising company has put out a new kit designed to make it easier for us to tell our Government what we want. Costing $1, the kit contains paper, envelopes, names of both Senators and Representatives, and advice on how to address lawmakers.

Six Ways To Stretch Your Shrinking Dollar

No one who's gone shopping lately needs a tape measure to tell that the buying power of the American dollar is diminishing. Today, it's 1933, 15 years ago.

What is worse, present taxes leave less dollars in your paycheck and rates soar so alarmingly with an increase of income, that even if you get an encouraging raise, you get a discouraging bite taken out of it.

Face it: few of us can add enough to our earnings to make any appreciable difference in what the government lets us keep. Yet chances are you can profit by the six-suggestions offered today:

1. Save on fruits and vegetables in season at peak of production when they cost less, taste better. Cook only enough for one meal. Buy meats on sale. Large cuts that can be served twice are economical, but limp, left over vegetables, bereft of vitamins, are wasteful. Buy staple items in quantity. And, if your time is money, frozen foods are thrifty.

2. Rent a really cheap apartment or house with possibilities on a lease that's long enough to warrant your doing all the fixing and decorating yourself. Designed for amateur use, water paints are inexpensive, fun to use, while the new washable, rubber base paints can be rolled are are tough, hard-wearing marvels.

3. Consider hospitalization and medical care plans, especially for dependents. Present sharp advance in age makes them poorer risks. Help prevent illness in your family with a balanced diet plus vitamin supplements, and immediate medication at the first siggs of symptoms. Invest in an annual check-up for every one of them.

4. Cut unnecessary costs. Give simple, balmy light supper parties on the lawn or right in the living room. Hot dogs and potato salad are still fine. Or try, instead, a huge chef salad, a tray full of assorted cheeses and some rye bread.

5. Trade off your mistakes for someone else's and enjoy the change. Swap things you don't need for old hat a dress, a bucket, etc., with friends and neighbors for things you do need. Exchange a member one person's folly is another person's windfall.

6. Choose fewer, better clothes and give them better care. Regular dry cleaning, mending and storing when necessary. Smart accessories can give one super suit or coat many different looks and uses while giving you the comfort of an emptier closet, fuller wallet.

Life's Highway

BY GORDON MARTIN

It's so quiet 'round the neighborhood that everyone is scared . . . Since the unexpected silence caught us wholly unprepared. For we never hear the voices of a shouting bunch of boys . . . and it's strange, because we used to hear a lot of youthful noise. There was slamming of the door in front, and slamming in the back . . . and the stairs were always quiet—then the clatter of the pack. Now it seems as if the telephone just never sounds at all . . . though we used to think that's easy enough to hear ring right off the wall. It's the same outdoors where boys would always gather for their sport . . . and no longer are we startled—do we care—by roar and snort. So it sure is mighty lonesome as we sit around—the house . . . for our Junior went to live with Dad.

Resident Of Towns Lose Truth Values

City life becomes so complex sometimes that normally intelligent people lose sight of some simple truths. Parents moving toward retirement age are not immune from this.

I have just spent a week-end with a man and his wife, both past 70, who have lived their lifetime farming and who have accumulated an estate of, perhaps, $35,000 in land, house and machinery. They are simple people, as the saying goes, and have simple tastes. Neither had much education.

Yet they have been able to keep close to them, and devoted to them, their three children, all nearing 30 now and all living in the city.

Few educated parents in the city have done as well.

"Our idea, as the children became grown, was that their Mother and I didn't owe them a living," the man told me. "We had lived a hard life on the farm, and it wasn't out of keeping to make this a hard and fast decision.

"As the two boys left to take jobs in the city, and then when our daughter married and left too, we told them all the same thing: God meant for everybody to make their own way, even the animals and the birds. We meant for our children to do it."

"If ever they got into trouble, come let us know. If they ever wanted money they'd have to work it out for themselves."

The years moved on and the children didn't come home much. On one occasion the daughter hinted in a letter she needed some money, and on another occasion a son wrote asking about a loan. The parents didn't answer either letter.

"It was lonely those five or six years when we didn't hear much and once in a while Mother and I wondered if we had been too hard and had lost our children. But I knew our stand was right and I had enough faith in human nature to know that the time would come in our children's lives when we would be impatient again . . . provided we held firm.

"The time came. It came when our children began having their children The farm — which we hadn't squandered to make our children temporarily happy — became a vacation spot for all of them. And for six weeks every summer the place bounced with wideeyed, wonderful grandchildren.

"We weren't kidding ourselves, Mother and me. Our children were coming home because it was good for the children and because it was free, But you have to make allowances. And I still had faith that human nature would pay off."

Through the years the families continued to come, and never a dime changed hands. But every year as the children's cars headed back to the city they carried a little more than before — a peck of potatoes, a bushel of apples, ten jars of jelly, an heirloom cherry table. And every year the old homeplace became more inviting to them all.

The children, getting on toward middle age and thinking of security, began talking of buying farm land; the grandchildren began adopting the farm animals.

"The free vacations had finally brought them back. And once back, and growing a little older, they came to have respect for what we were and for what wealth we had.

"Plan as I think our children are, they wouldn't be still coming back if I hadn't held to our farm and money.

"We had rather my children would wish I'd die so they could get my money, than to wish I'd die so they wouldn't have to support me. That's what happens when parents give everything to them. But if you hold on to what you've got stay interesting through the years and keep your children coming home.

"And that gives them a chance to love you in old age for something besides what you will spend."

Myra Adkins Wined, Dined In New York

When Myra Adkins visited New York recently as a special envoy from the Mooresville Mills baseball club, she was conducted on a whirlwind tour by members of the New York sales office.

Included in her never-to-be-forgotten week's vacation were visits to New York's most glamorous nightclubs, broadway shows and appearances on Dumont Television Network.

The top picture is a souvenir of Mooresville's beauty queen's visit to the famous Stork Club. She is pictured here with, from left to right: Darwin Heath, advertising and sales promotion manager of the Mooresville sales office; John LaGrange, salesman in the apparel fabrics division; and her mother, Mrs. Robert Adkins.

Queen Myra was a special guest on one of New York's favorite television programs, 'The Susan Adams Show." During the program, Myra and Miss Adams discussed Mooresville Mills' new Raycara fabric. Incidentally, the outfit Myra is wearing in this photo was made exclusively for her out of bright red Raycara.

She was received royally at the sales office in the Empire State Building. Here, in the-bottom picture, she and her mother examine a new Mooresville pattern now on the market. The gent seated on the desk at the left is Art Brown, Bill Flagg is standing between Myra and her mother, and Johnny Hicks is holding the style sample on the right.

While in New York, Myra and her mother were guests of the Hotel Picadilly, located just off Broadway.

Exhibition Ball Game Scheduled Saturday Night

An exhibition baseball game will be played Saturday night at the Mooresville Mills Park between the Negro American Legion Junior team and Mount Tabor.

Admission to the game will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Game time has been set for 8 p. m. and seats will be reserved for white spectators.

Key Club Members Meet Monday Night

Members of the Key Club will meet Monday evening, September 21, at 6:30 P. M., at the M. E. Pleasant Methodist Church across the river. Ladies of the church will serve the meal.

President Bill Norman has announced that members should be reminded that monthly dues are due on the first of each month, and every member should see that he is in good standing.

In October the Key Club again visits the Corriher Orange out the Landis highway and in November the club will meet at the Smyrna Church.

Bowling Alleys Are Now Open

Mooresville Mills bowling alleys were opened for the fall and winter months last Monday night under the direction of Jim Mills.

Mills, who manages the Mooresville baseball club during the summer, reports that he will operate the alleys under the same policy as he did last year, with the exception of five cent bills in place of pennies.

The alleys will be open each day from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m., Monday through Saturday.

Need More Adults For Dance Class

More employees are needed to register for a new adult dancing class on Wednesday nights, says Mrs. Sam Carter, head of the Carter School of Dancing.

"We have one class at 6 o'clock now," she states, "and we would like to start another one to begin at 7 o'clock," —

All persons interested in learning to dance are urged to contact the Public Relations office or register with Mrs. Carter next Wednesday night.

Cost for the lessons is only three dollars per month. Students will learn to fox trot, rhumba, samba, tango and jitterbug.

Need Addresses Of Employees Now In Armed Services

Addresses of all former employees who are now in the armed service are needed immediately by the Public Relations Department in order that Christmas gifts can be ordered, packaged and shipped to men overseas by December 25th.

Employees who have sons in service who formerly worked at Mooresville Mills are urged to bring these addresses by the Public Relations office as soon as possible.

Mooresville Mills has made the sending of Yule gifts to servicemen a formal practice for many years.

Mrs. Carrie Steele, sewing room employee, will celebrate her 33rd year with Mooresville Mills Saturday. Mrs. Steele possesses a remarkable service record inasmuch as she has never been off the mill's payroll except for a brief period last year when she suffered a slight injury. She is married to Glenn Steele, a former receiving clerk in the supply room who retired 12 years ago. The Steele's live at 158 East Brawley street and are members of the Broad Street Methodist Church.

A Lift For Living . . .

BY DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

OUR BALLOTS ARE SECRET—Last November we Americans went into our polling booths and cast our ballots in a national election. It is stirring to see sixty million citizens exercise their precious privilege of voting by free and secret ballot.

In the voting booth each of us is equal to every other citizen, each has just as much say as each independent and unobserved. There is something sobering, even exalting when one stands alone with his conscience and his God to choose his leaders.

I was glad that the representatives of Russia and her satellites were present at our shores to observe an election day in our country. In America our candidates criticize each other but we do not fear to submit to their accusations.

Right now each of us, wherever we are, is in the process of voting on some issue. Let's think about the secret ballot in the voting booth of life. And I should like to view it in the light of something the Master said, as recorded in Luke. Read this:

"Whatever you have said in the dark shall be heard in the light and what you have whispered in the inner rooms shall be proclaimed upon the housetops."

Each of us thinks in secret. Secrecy is essential to our selfhood. We could not be ourselves if we had no chambers of thought which we could lock from the inside. There are times when we have to withdraw into ourselves in order to be ourselves.

And this secrecy is essential to our association with others. The shallow person who confesses everything that comes into his head and carries all his emotions on his sleeve does not invite deep abiding friendship. We prefer those reticent at times to quiet dignity who reveal by their reserve that they have thoughts too deep for words. We like to look in on a person's life only at his invitation.

Whenever the average person gets an upset stomach, he usually says (or thinks) "It must have been something I ate." There may have been too much of what he ate, but its also possible that it was mildly poisoned — by food that wasn't "just right."

Modern food processing keeps most foods fresh until you buy them—by "processing" them in glass jars or cans, by "sealing" in wax paper or metal foil, or by constant refrigeration. But what happens when you open the package? If it isn't all eaten (or the food wasn't packaged to begin with), how long can you keep it? What kind of containers should you keep it in? And how do you know if and when it goes "bad?"

To find out, we talked with some experts who have worked in the food packaging field for over 20 years and there's little they don't know about it. "It's a complex subject," they say, "but there are some basic facts that most people would do well to keep in mind."

Here's what we learned:

First, be sure the food is fresh when you buy it. Fresh fruits and vegetables should have a clean, crisp look. If they've been bruised or accidently frozen (as in winter), the tissues will be softened and also apt to deteriorate sooner. Accidental freezing causes a change in flavor (citrus fruits taste bitter; potatoes become sweet). Dry, fresh fish become limp, with sunken eyes and wrinkled skin. Meats and poultry should have a clean, freshly killed appearance—usually called "bloom." As for canned "non-perishable" foods, it's safest to buy them by brand name.

Refrigeration — to some degree —is constantly taking place in the foods you buy. Most foods in glass containers or cans will stay in top condition for as long as a year at room temperature, but "fresh" foods, or those left over from meals, require special care. The average refrigerator maintains a temperature of about 50 degrees F.—cold enough to keep food fresh 2 or 3 times as long as at room temperature. The ice cubes-section of the freezer is 20 degrees and can be made as cold as 10 degrees. But food shouldn't be left there long, since ideal food freezing temperatures are between zero and minus 10 degrees. The important thing is to keep food covered to prevent the circulating air inside the refrigerator from drying it out or transferring strong odors.

There are two kinds of spoilage of food deterioration, which refers to its loss of quality, and decomposition, which refers to the destruction of nutritional values. They don't usually occur together. Decomposition is caused by bacteria, yeasts, and bacteria) which take effect as food becomes older, may make food unsafe to eat. Molds appear only on the surface of food, in colored patches. They have a musty odor and flavor —but don't usually cause illness. Yeasts grow mostly in fruits rich in liquid or semi-solid consistency (cider, mayonnaise, etc.)—and seldom cause illness. Since they form carbon dioxide gas, gas "bubbles" indicate their presence. A "bulged" can of fruit is often the result of gas pressure caused by improper canning which failed to kill the yeasts. Bacteria can be harmful. They multiply most rapidly in low acid foods like meat, vegetables, and dairy products — but not in tart food. A "sulphury" odor may identify them, particularly in cuts of meat or in poultry.

Just how long can you safely keep foods? Actually, the requirements vary with different foods. But a good general rule to follow is: don't keep non acid foods in the refrigerator for more than three days. Acid foods (fruits, tomatoes) can be kept in refrigerator safely up to a week. The meat quickest to spoil is pork; the longest-lasting are ham and beef. As a rule, it's not wise to re-freeze food after it has been thawed out.

Always cook foods immediately after thawing. Thawed foods are wet and spoil more readily.

Wait A Minute By Pat Reese

THE BIGGEST CATCH: Ora Swaney and Bill Norman are a couple of guys who belong to the mythical "Tall Tale" club here at Mooresville. The two loose-tongued gents were sitting in the gate house one afternoon last week, swapping fishing stories with John Gabriel and Robert Little. Ora related this little tidbit that left his listeners gaping: "I was fishing up near Fontana not long ago and hooked a pretty good sized fish. I was reeling him into my boat when, what'd, this tremendous bass swallowed that first fish with one gulp. I fought with him about an hour and finally got him into the boat. He was 32 inches long and weighed 16 pounds." When Ora finished his oration, Bill sorta smiled, took a deep breath and said: "Well, Ora, that was a pretty good fish. But one time I was fishing over in the Pee Dee River at a spot where a freight train ran off the track and into the water a couple of years ago. Didn't catch nothing for awhile and I was getting ready to go home when I felt something tugging at my line. I reeled in my fish, and lo and behold, I'd snagged the lantern that the fireman on that wrecked train had used. And, would you believe it, the lantern was still lit!" Ora coughed, turned red, glared up at Bill and then remarked dryly: "Bill, I'll tell you. I'll take eight inches and 10 pounds off that fish of mine if you'll blow out the light in that lantern."

MOUNTAIN MUSIC: This writer was a judge of the folk music and dancing division of the North Carolina Apple Festival two weeks ago — away up in Hendersonville. It had the opportunity to see the world's champion Echo Inn Clogers once again. Most of you readers will remember their performance here in Mooresville last year when they danced for an employee show at the high school auditorium. The kids are still kicking and clowning to the lilting tune of "Alabama Jubilee" and they told me they'd like to visit Mooresville again.

AT HER WORD: Leaving the room for a moment, a Texas teacher told the kids to "keep quiet". A man sneaked in and stole $7 from teacher's purse. The kids kept quiet.

Square Dances Scheduled Each Friday Evening

Managers Believe That Class D. Ball Will Die After 1953 Due To Malnutrition Of Fans

BY PAUL CALDWELL

Odds are ten to one among managers of teams in the attendance-starved Tar Heel League that this will be the last year for organized baseball in this section, unless a miracle sweeps through. Managers contacted last week said they were fortunate to finish the season. Three stated that if they knew at the outset that attendance would be so poor they would never have attempted to field a club this year.

The once baseball-hungry section of North Carolina is on the verge of losing a sport that first offered at the gate in all minor leagues for the past two years.

Mooresville has had organized baseball since 1937 and in only rare occasions have these parks drawn an even broke even. But you can look at the turnstiles any night and see thousands of empty seats where there used to be a big league team or two for clubs like Mooresville who wouldn't be able to get out and beat the bushes for rookies. Well, let's wait and see.

If baseball dies — and it certainly is in its death throes now—point your fingers at the managers who shelled out inherited teams, and the class men and limited service players with dollar mark eyes, and itching palms, but too little hustle.

Take the Moors, there were only one promising prospect on the entire squad, and he was sold. It's hard to determine right now, but my guess is that he probably will take a cut in pay when he joins some club next season. There have been many instances in our league where ambition has been killed because Class D ball made bigger financial overtures than did higher ball.

If the league survives, the five class men have got to go. There is talk that two class men would be the limit next year, should there have been enough teams brave enough to gamble. This sounds like a partial solution. It was tried in the Appalachian League this year, and the eighth place team, drew 100,000 fans because the team was made up of youngsters who could hustle, and then keep trading at night.

If teams would agree to the two class man rule there would have to be a big league line-up for clubs like Mooresville who wouldn't be able to get out and beat the bushes for rookies. Well, let's wait and see.

If baseball dies — and it certainly is in its death throes now—point your fingers at the managers who shelled out inherited teams, and the class men and limited-service players with dollar mark eyes, and itching palms, but too little hustle.

Cleveland County Fair Will Open September 22

Shelby, Sept. 15 — Doc Dorton has done it again!

The Cleveland County Fair, which is already the biggest and best county fair in the United States, is all set for another season with an expanded program of entertainment and exhibits slated to outdo anything ever seen on Cleveland County Fairground.

In arranging the program for the fair, set to open September 22 and run through September 26, Doc Dorton has made major changes in the schedule to give time for new features added by popular demand.

Horse racing, always a popular feature, has top spot in front of the grandstand the first three afternoons, along with a variety show and musical revue staged by George A. Hamid between the races. Horses already entered in the races include Miss Fortune, who was the horse driven by Pa Kettle in the movie, "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair."

Other entries already assured will give fairgoers some of the best horse racing available anywhere.

The "Stars of Tomorrow" amateur talent contest will be held each day in front of the grandstand and will be climaxed Saturday when George A. Hamid, who operates the Steel Pier at Atlantic City and provides the stage show for the Cleveland County Fair each afternoon and evening, will judge the finals.

James E. Strates Shows, which was the subject of an article in the Saturday Evening Post several months ago, will be back again with a new midway carried on 45 special railway cars. Jimmy and his pet elephant will be along to join in the fun and frolic.

Aside from the superb entertainment fare arranged, Doc Dorton has made sure that the agricultural aspect of Cleveland County will be fully represented, from lower barn, sleek dairy cattle just above, blue ribbon fowls, and grunting and squealing porkers in other sections.

The fair started primarily as an agricultural fair and progress in this respect has kept pace through the 29 years past with the entertainment program and, as the fair enters its 30th year, promises to be much improved since last year in arrangement and general quality of exhibits.

September 22-26, the first of the state's three great fairs, all managed by Dr. J. S. Dorton. The lineup—Shelby, Charlotte, Raleigh.

Two Men Attack Girl Sleepwalker

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 — Sleepwalking on the street in a scanty dressing gown was bad enough.

But to wake up and find yourself in a car fighting off two men bent on criminally attacking you.

This was real nightmare told the police by Mrs. Maryjane M. Oliver, a 22-year-old Los Angeles housewife, under treatment as a somnambulist for two months.

She succeeded in fighting off the attack, but not before she was thrown from the speeding auto at 140th and Kornblum streets.

She was taken to Tri-City Hospital suffering from two blackened eyes, lacerations, and a possible facial fracture.

This was the story she told police:

The attractive brunette walked out of her locked house at 1:30 in the morning. Her husband, John, a cook, was at work.

The next thing she knew she was in the back seat of a green sedan and was struggling violently with one of two men sitting next to her.

The man, 25, wearing cowboy boots, tried to tear her dressing gown, saying:

"Do I have to kill you?"

Mrs. Oliver put up a fight and her assailant struck her in the face with his fist.

She bit him on the thumb, which infuriated him so that he grabbed a flashlight and hit her on the head.

The plucky housewife managed to wrest the flashlight from his grasp. She struck him with it several times when the driver yelled:

"We'd better dump her out here."

As the car sped off, Mrs. Oliver, her face streaming with blood, crawled to the home of John Herndon, on Kornblum street.

He heard her groans, carried her into the house, and called police.

Mrs. Oliver was a former president of the Leukemia Hope Group following the death of a son from the disease two years ago.

Neighbors said she had been in ill health for some time. Only three weeks ago she was found sleepwalking at Crenshaw and Century blvds., a short distance from her home.

—NATURAL ELEMENTS—

There are 92 natural elements, beginning with hydrogen at number one and ending with uranium at number 92.

When Life REALLY begins...

Baby's first step is something more than a parlor sensation!

It is her first daring venture in the conquest of her own limitations!

We really begin to live when we first try to overcome our weaknesses. And we cease to live the moment we lose the burning desire for self-improvement.

Our most serious limitations are not physical, but spiritual. That is why the Christian Church is indispensable to the life of a child or an adult.

Christianity helps us understand those spiritual shortcomings. Christ teaches the Faith by which alone man overcomes them.

And our daily conquest of these spiritual limitations prepares us for the ultimate goal of living—that LIFE WITHOUT LIMITATIONS which we call Heaven!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Shirt Factory Now In New Building

BY ROBERT W. MOORE
Chamber of Commerce

An organization that came quietly into town almost seven years ago, just as quietly began its first stint of production in a brand new building September 8.

It was the Troutman Shirt Company, owned and operated by L. A. and H. T. Brown of Troutman. The company, organized in 1922, has grown steadily through the years, and now has plants in Troutman, Mt. Airy, Sparta, and Mooresville, and merchandises its products in all of the 48 states and in South America. The total employees of the several plants amounts to something more than 600.

The new 100-by-200-feet building, located on the corner of Patterson St. and West Statesville avenue, was begun early last June and completed the latter part of August.—It was privately financed, and built by the P. S. West Construction Company of Statesville.

H. T. Brown, joint owner of the business, has announced that the two plants here will continue to operate separately, the new plant to be known as plant No. 1, the old one as plant No. 2. The combined annual payroll for the two plants will be $500,000. Plant 1, when in full production, will employ about 225 persons, while plant 2 will continue to employ between 85 and 90. Plant number 2 is located on North Main Street.

Full production, in terms of manufactured items, will amount to 6,500 dozen work shirts per week, 1,200 dozen sport shirts per week, and 1,000 dozen work trousers weekly. The addition of plant 1 to the Troutman Company gives Mooresville three shirt-making factories, the other two being the aforementioned plant number 2 and Erw's, Inc., which is located on the Salisbury highway.

John Simpson has been named superintendent of both of the company's plants here. He has had 15 years' experience with the company.

Mrs. Helen Neel, who has had ten years' experience with the company, has been named floor lady at plant number 1. She is assisted by Mrs. Lucy Beaver. Mrs. Carolyn Thompson is floor lady at plant 2.

The Troutman Shirt Company, from time to time, had contemplated an expansion program in Mooresville, including the erection of a new building. Nothing concrete, however, had been accomplished in this direction until last spring when the owners were approached by the Mooresville Chamber of Commerce which, since its reorganization in January of this year, had been working actively to encourage new industry to come to Mooresville.

After the decision to erect a new building here had been made, and during the time the building was under construction, the local Chamber of Commerce worked closely with the owners on the various matters which the expansion program entailed.

Auto Aids Flight Of Stork As Doctor Heeds Hurry Call

Wake Forest, N. C., Sept. 15 — A Wake Forest physician has added an automobile to his varied list of delivery rooms.

An urgent bell-ringer woke Dr. C. T. Wilkinson in the wee hours of the morning and the doctor thrust his head out the bedroom window.

"Tell him to hurry," a woman's voice exclaimed.

Dr. Wilkinson padded outside in his pajamas and robe and found an axious husband pacing the lawn and an anxious wife waiting in an automobile. Urgency of the situation left the physician no choice. He prepared for delivery then and there.

While Mrs. Wilkinson fed coffee to the patient, Dr. Wilkinson delivered a lusty six-pound boy to Mrs. Vernon Webster. The physician and Mrs. Webster's husband then wrapped up the mother and baby and returned them to their home near here.

All are reported doing fine.

Tax Collector Got $565 From Every Man, Woman, Child

Washington, Sept. 15 — Federal, state and local governments together appear to have collected about $565 in taxes for every man, woman and child in the United States during the past fiscal year.

The estimate was derived from a Census Bureau report showing that in the 12 months ended June 30 the 48 states collected $10,342,000,000 in tax revenue, or 685 million more than in the previous year.

Commerce department officials gave no exact figure on collections by local governments but estimated their tax take as about the same as the states'.

Added to the whopping 69 and one-half billion dollars in federal revenue for the same period, the state and local collections make a grand total of about 90 and one-half billion dollars collected from a total population of 160 million persons.
